BOOST THE FIRE BONDS

COMMITTEE CALLS UPON PEOPLE TO WAKE UP TO OUR NEEDS

Let us awake to the fact that Glendale needs protection. Our property, our homes, our lives and the lives of our loved ones are in danger. In these most strenuous times in the history of our nation, when we are all striving with the best there is in us, that our country may give a good account of herself in the terrible conflict being waged across the seas, let us not forget the dangers that confront us as a community. The voters of Glendale will have an opportunity in the near future to properly equip this city in the way of fire fighting apparatus. The date has been set for an election to vote bonds for equipment necessary to protect our property and our lives from a destructive fire which may come at any time. Let us not be like the conscientious objectors who are opposing President Wilson and his Cabinet in their preparation for the conduct of the war. We may not believe in fires, but we may wake up in the night and find our homes and lives in danger from the flames just the same. Let us not be pacifists and oppose making preparation for fighting fires by saying that we never have had a destructive fire and it is not likely we ever will have. Many communities have learned to their sorrow that this is false reasoning. Let us not be like the anarchist who opposes everything suggested by those in authority, but let us all get together on this bond issue and put it through.

Glendale needs this protection, and sooner or later an intelligent community will demand it. Why waste our good money in calling another election? Let us see that the issue is carried now and have done with it.

This is a matter of real serious concern to every taxpayer and voter in Glendale. Appoint yourself a committee of one to see that every voter with whom you have an ounce of influence is enlightened as to the necessity of this bond issue and gives his promise to vote for the bonds, then see that he votes.

Some people may think that it takes an expert to buy suitable fire-fighting equipment. This is not so in this modern day. There are perhaps not more than two fire engines built which are of the first class, and of course that is what Glendale wants. It is a tossup as to which of these two would serve us best. Either one would serve us in a big fire, and that is the protection we want; that we must have and that we will get.

Vote for the fire bonds October 30, 1917.
JESSE E. SMITH,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

MRS. EAGER GIVES LUNCHEON

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones and Mrs. H. E. Bartlett attended a large and exceptionally lovely luncheon on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Caroline B. Eager, on Regent street, in Los Angeles. Almost sixty clubwomen and friends of Mrs. Eager were the guests, and her beautiful home was decorated in Japanese style. The luncheon was served at large and small tables scattered over the porches, court, roof garden and tea house, all with Japanese decorations, and the unique plan was carried out of allowing the guests to choose in which of these delightful spots they would be served. A real Japanese menu was served in genuine Japanese dishes by pretty little Japanese girls, and others equally pretty in their dainty Japanese costumes.

Later in the living room Mrs. Eager told of club work in Manila, Shanghai and many other places. She has personally organized clubs in Japan and was able to give a most entertaining account of the work from her own experiences. The afternoon was a worth while and intensely interesting as well as a highly enjoyable one.

FLAGS WANTED

Flags are wanted for decorating the headquarters of the Yuletide Remembrance Society, which is raising funds for soldiers' Christmas gifts. Those having flags who are willing to lend them may write names on them and leave same at 1017 Broadway, the new headquarters for the committee. This courtesy will be much appreciated.

COLUMBUS AVENUE P.-T. A.

The Columbus Avenue Parent-Teacher's Association will meet on Thursday, October 25, at 3 o'clock, at the school. W. W. Hush, assistant field secretary of the Red Cross, will be the speaker. Mrs. John Robert White, the president, has called an executive board meeting for 2:30.

UNIFIED COMMUNITY

MERCHANTS MUST WIN CONFIDENCE OF RESIDENTS—GET TOGETHER MEETINGS

That the business houses of Glendale may enjoy a liberal patronage from the citizens of the community, the owners, representatives and managers of these business houses must be known in the community as men of integrity and unquestionable business ability. They must be in a position to go out in the wholesale markets of the world and purchase merchandise at as low prices as the average man in similar business. The Glendale community is made up of an intelligent and well to do class of people—people who have been used to fair treatment and are willing to pay the price if the value is in the article offered for sale.

Merchants must make good first and then people will do their part. One merchant working single-handed can not accomplish what is needed. All merchants must unite in exhibiting a substantial enterprise that will get the respect of the buying public. Glendale must be truly spoken of as the best business center for a city of its population in the state. Merchants in a city of the population of Glendale must have a favorable acquaintance with the people in the immediate and adjacent vicinity, and, above all, they must have a favorable acquaintance with one another.

When the time comes that Glendale merchants will get practically all the trade from the people of this section of the San Fernando Valley it will be when the stocks of goods carried by these merchants will merit the patronage.

The Evening News will continue to emphasize the get-together spirit on the part of the merchants.

MASS MEETING

At the High School Wednesday evening, tomorrow. A special effort has been made to plan an important mass meeting in Glendale this week. The date had been set for Thursday evening, and was so announced at the splendid service last night at the First M. E. church, but it seems inadvisable because of the difficulty of suiting the convenience of the expected speakers to change the date. As planned by those in charge, there will be an address by Dr. James E. Francis, pastor of the First Baptist church, Los Angeles, at present acting as chaplain at large for the Y. M. C. A. in the United States army camps. He has a wonderful and thrilling story to tell of his work among the Liberty Boys.

The Liberty Loan Committee also has promised to send "one of the best speakers" for this occasion, and the Red Cross urges its members and friends to give this date wide publicity, especially as some have expected it to be on Thursday.

Remember, the mass meeting at the High School Auditorium at 7:45 on Wednesday evening next. No tickets or admission.

LIBERTY LOAN POSTERS

The new circulars and posters of the Liberty bonds have been distributed in Glendale today by the Chamber of Commerce. Large posters have been placed on the Montrose railway, and Glendale had the honor of being able to suggest to the headquarters in Los Angeles that the big posters might be placed on the Pacific Electric. The suggestion met with immediate adoption and the matter has been taken up with the proper authorities.

In all your giving, aim to give in the way that your country will reap the greatest benefit.

GOVERNOR APPOINTS LIBERTY DAY

SACRAMENTO, Cal., October 23.—Here is the proclamation of Governor Stephens, urging the people of California to observe Wednesday, October 24, as Liberty Day. The Governor proclaims the day a half holiday, as follows:

"The nation is calling upon us to lend our money for its support in this hour of emergency. The eyes of our allies are upon us, looking for encouragement. Our enemies are watching us, looking for a sign of weakness. We must show the world by our response to the nation's call that we, as a people, are absolutely and unalterably pledged to the cause of liberty.

"In order to emphasize the duty that is ours, the President has designated Wednesday, October 24, as Liberty Day. I strongly feel that the people of this state should, on that date, set aside their ordinary duties and devote themselves to the support of the Liberty loan campaign. I do, therefore, urge that the afternoon of that day, be made a holiday for all state employees throughout the state whose services can be spared, that all stores and all public places be closed, and that all mayors and other local authorities join with their local Liberty loan committees in rolling up a subscription in the state of California that will far exceed our allotment."

REV. SNUDDEN REPLIES

CHURCH MUST NOT BE USED BY OUTSIDE ORGANIZATION TO MAKE MONEY

Henry R. Harrower, M. D., Glendale, California:
Dear Dr. Harrower—In reply to your communication addressed to the trustees of the First Methodist Episcopal church and to the pastor, through the columns of the Glendale News of October 11, we beg to submit the following reply:

The law of the state of California gives us no option in the matter. It is positive in its requirements, and to grant the use of the church to an organization not connected with the church organization, and by it to be used for the making of money, would place the church in the position of a law breaker and liable to the penalties.

We all believe in the great and splendid work of the Red Cross, one of humanity's noblest ministries. We all desire to see the success of its undertakings, and the books of the local chapter will doubtless show a goodly number of Methodist members. Heroic young men of our local church are now in the training cantonments. We are all patriotic citizens and willing to do our bit. But we are subject to the laws of the state, which as you discovered, forbid the use of the building for the proposed use, and, as you say, to change it, the law would require an amendment to the constitution. The law may be faulty, but to rent or grant the use of the building for commercial purposes is a matter governed by the law.

The pastor had the opinion of the district attorney's office while pastor in Glendora, and it was stated that it was unlawful for the church to charge admission if the lecturer or musicians were outsiders, even though the money derived went for the local church work. This being so, you can readily see that to give the use of the building to an outside organization for commercial purposes, however much we may appreciate and favor its work, would be distinctly contrary to the law. Keeping the law is the essence of patriotism, and we do not think that the noble, patriotic Red Cross would have us set an example of law breaking in the name of patriotism. We have canvassed this matter thoroughly and do not see how we can give any other answer to this matter thoroughly and do sincerely yours,

C. W. Ingledue, A. W. Tower, T. W. Watson, C. H. Bott, Ed M. Lee, T. A. Wright, L. E. Brockman (absent), Trustees.
B. Dudley Snudden, Pastor.

VISIT LE HAVRE

TRAVEL SECTION SEES FRENCH CITIES THROUGH MRS. TURCK'S EYES

The art and travel section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club met at the home of the curator, Mrs. Turck, yesterday afternoon. There was a good attendance, and some time was devoted to securing travelers' checks, letters of credit and staterooms. They sailed at 3 p. m., and their steamer made real aeroplane time, for they landed at Havre safely, and what they saw is given in the account that follows:

We land in Havre after eight delightful days on shipboard, having made many pleasant acquaintances and some true friends en voyage. I trust. Nevertheless we are glad to see land once more, and all agree that the original name of this harbor, Havre de Grace, meaning "haven of grace," means much. Havre is located at the mouth of the River Seine, which is a most important stream, about 500 miles long. It rises in Middle France, in the Pote d'Or, which is a department of Burgundy, of which Dijon is the capital. The river flows northwest and empties into the English channel and forms what the French call a manche de mer, or sleeve of the sea.

Havre is a large commercial city of 150,000 population, and was founded by Louis XII in the fifteenth century, and developed by his cousin and successor to the throne, Francis I. It is the second largest seaport in France, the terminus of several steam ship lines and has important sugar refineries. Bernardin de Saint Pierre, the author of "Paul and Virginia," was born here. On our first visit to Havre, many years ago, I was much impressed by a funeral procession we saw passing along one of the streets. The plain casket was placed in one of those queer open hearses that one sees nowhere else in the world, drawn by two black horses. There was an entire absence of flowers, metal leaves or wreaths, which indicated the dire poverty of the deceased, but closely following, on foot, came the widow, bearing an unlighted lantern, which was symbolic of the fact that the light of her life had gone out, and who can say that a man who could inspire such great love was not rich indeed!

Havre has her churches and museums, but they are of but minor interest as compared with those awaiting us, and after our baggage has been inspected by the customs officers we will take the train for Rouen, which is considered by many to be next to Paris, the most interesting city in France. It is the capital of Normandy, and very rich, richer perhaps in mediaeval architecture than any other French city. In spite of Baron Haussmann, it has not wiped out the signs and marks of age, and it is astonishing that a big, busy, manufacturing city of 130,000 people should have preserved so many relics of its less practical days. Narrow streets, old houses, gabled, ancient and time-stained, are always within reach. So much of history has been made here that you can not forget, if you would, those Norman pirates headed by Rolla, the Scandinavian viking, who stormed its gates in 911. The French and English kings who made of it a battle ground, or poor little Jeanne d'Arc (Joan of Arc), who saved France and was rewarded by being burned at the stake (Continued on Page 3)

"GLENDAL BOY" WRITES HOME

A letter, signed "A Glendale Boy," has been received by the editor of the Glendale Evening News, and follows in part:

"I would like to tell you something about a convoy, but can not mention what ship I am on. I came into the navy some two years ago, and our ship is on the east coast now and having its share of war duty.

"On one trip we left a certain port, and as we passed the transports the naval crews on them cheered us. When the soldiers saw us they stood at attention, but could not seem to utter a sound. They felt almost safe when they saw a ship of our size was going to convoy them across. They stood there and cried like babies, as most of them thought they would never see home again.

"The trip across was rough, and many of the soldiers were sick and thought that a battlefield was tame compared to the big rollers. The trip was 23 days, and while in the danger zone we wore life jackets day and night, with eight gun crews on watch at their guns all of the time. The trip back was easy, as we had no one to look after. Later I will write you another letter and will explain something of the war as I have seen it."

WANTED—A SOUND LAW

Word from Washington seems to indicate that the new postal rates never will go into effect—that before the law becomes operative in July the entire subject of second-class mail transportation will be taken up by committees of the House and Senate and an effort made to reach an equitable charge for newspaper delivery. It is to be hoped, if the subject is taken up, that the job will be thoroughly done and an end put once and for all to the continuous and preposterous charge that the newspapers are enjoying a ninety million dollar subsidy at the hands of the government. No more absurd statement ever has been made by men supposed to be fair and of mature judgment.

It is not impossible to find out the cost of carrying newspaper mail. It is not impossible to find out what it costs to carry the magazines and national weeklies by mail and what it costs to carry the franked matter so dear to the hearts of our representatives. If the government officials cannot separate these various costs they can be found out quite definitely by any of a dozen reputable accountants used to dealing with intricate problems and large industrial enterprises. If we are to have sane and just legislation the cost of carrying newspaper mail must be found out as a first step. It will be time to discuss the method of charging for newspaper transportation when absolute knowledge of its cost becomes an indisputable fact. Before then legislation on the subject is bound to be haphazard and of a kind that ought not to be enacted in any enlightened country.—American Press.

LOCO WEED

Kaiser Bill has missed one big bet. He seems never to have heard of the loco weed. There are different forms of insanity and different causes which produce it, but the loco weed does the trick while you wait. Had Bill ever heard of this, he would dope his soldiers once for all time and they would never need re-priming to "go over the top."

It must cost like the duece to shoot "dope" into his men every time they start out as a shock unit. The loco weed is guaranteed to make a peaceful baby cotton tail walk up and spit in the face of a tom cat. It is the thing that bronchos eat and that makes those gentle representatives of the equine family step around on their toes watching a chance to do something funny. It causes the last mentioned pleasantly disposed animals to buck until he drops. Makes him prefer cacti, spines and all, to good alfalfa hay. Lead him to forsake the home of his fathers and wander at large, cursing, as it were, the mother that bore him.

How Bill would enjoy getting hold of this weed. He would brew enough of it to make his armies immune to pain. He could give it to the women and children of Northern France and Belgium. By tying a bunch of it on the tail of a flock of whales he could inaugurate and put in action another style of Unter-sea boat, which would do no damage to anything but hostile shipping, for all of Bill's shipping is tied up in storage.

Come, come Bill! Wake up! You don't know it all yet.—Burbank Review.

WILD PLANTS TO BE UTILIZED FOR FOOD.

Many wild plants of California may be utilized for food purposes, for drugs and for the manufacture of fibres as a result of investigations being made by expert chemists of the University of California, according to a report of the Committee on Scientific Research to Governor William D. Stephens, chairman of the State Council. Dr. John C. Merriam of the University of California is chairman of the Research committee.

There are many wild plants throughout the state, the usefulness of which for industrial, economic and food uses are believed to be valuable, according to reports of the expert investigators.

A most interesting piece of scientific research by this special body of investigators is being carried on by Dr. Hall and Dr. Goodspeed of the University of California, on the rubber content of the rabbit bush, a common and widely distributed plant of the desert region. Hopes are entertained of an efficient substitute for the manufacture of rubber being obtained from this plant. A report on this investigation will not be made until it has been possible to collect and analyze plants of this species obtainable at all seasons of the year.

WHEN WILL THE HOGS STOP

The man who said "This Life is Just One Thing After Another" pretty nearly hit the nail on the head. The east has just about recovered from an apparent calamity, the mills all set in motion and men in demand, when old gloom winter comes along and begins to sprinkle the ground with a light mantle of snow. To those people who went through last summer in the east this was a welcome sign, but their joy was short lived, for it has been discovered that there is a shortage of coal.

First the food speculators got busy when war was declared and cornered a lot of the daily necessities. When the government set Herbert Hoover on their trail they loosened up a bit and the market prices on some commodities dropped—there is still room for more work along that line. Then winter began to convert the heat of summer into a real livable climate when it is discovered that there is a shortage of the fuel supply. In one eastern city the street cars were tied up for an hour or so a few days ago because of a scarcity of coal to furnish the power. Mayors throughout Ohio began seizing coal from the speculators to meet the demand. Will it never stop?—Redondo Reflex.

The petroleum committee of the California State Council of Defense says: At the present ratio of production to consumption, the entire available storage of California fuel oil will be exhausted by June 1, 1919. Unless production is largely increased the war's increasing requirements will result in exhaustion before that time.

RED CROSS MEETS TROOP TRAINS

To All Chapters in the Pacific Division:
For your information, and for the purpose of publicity, we submit the following report of services rendered by various chapter canteen committees. We would be very glad to receive information along this line of activity from any of the chapters:

At Chicago on the 20th lunch was served to 533 men, and dinner (on the 21st) to 571 men. Ladies of the Red Cross served in the Army. The Army was profusely decorated. A band met the soldiers at the depot and marched to the Army. School children served the meal.

At Red Bluff, on the 21st, 421 men were served with lunch. This service was under the management of the Chamber of Commerce and the ladies of the Red Cross. Committees met the men at the depot, where they were divided into seven squads and marched to the different restaurants.

At Redding the following meals were served:

Sept. 9, dinner, 491 men.
Sept. 23, breakfast, 467 men.
Sept. 21, dinner, 533 men.
Sept. 22, breakfast, 615 men.
Sept. 23, dinner, 490 men.
Sept. 23, dinner, 566 men.
Sept. 24, breakfast, 560 men.
Sept. 24, dinner, 239 men.

These meals were divided among the five hotels and two restaurants there, under the management of the Chamber of Commerce and Red Cross Society. Each place seemed to vie with each other in setting good meals. There was music in each place, also singing. A band met the train.

At San Jose elaborate preparations had been made. The meal was served in the open under brilliant, temporary lighting. There was a barbecue of mutton (a trench had been dug in the public square, and the meat barbecued during the day. A band met the men at the train and music was furnished during the meal.

At Bakersfield the men were served in the reservation grounds. It was prepared at a restaurant and served by fifty men of the Southern Pacific offices, who had volunteered their services. Bands played during the meal, which was served amid most attractive surroundings. At all places cigars and cigarettes were furnished the men.

At Stockton, on the 20th, breakfast and dinner were served to 500 men. These two meals were served in the hotels.

At Williams, on the 22d and 23d, dinner was served to 541 and 500 men, respectively.

Altogether, the service of these troop trains and the manner in which the Red Cross and the citizens of the different towns participated, is one of the most remarkable evidences of patriotic service that has been given.

Yours very truly,

JOHN L. CLYMER,
Director Bureau of Development.
Approved by Marshal Hale, Mgr.
October 11, 1917.

GLENDALE'S NEW PREACHER

"The King is dead! Long live the King!" is an axiom of monarchies. "Our preacher has gone! Long live our preacher!" is the slogan of farewell and hail in some Methodist church after every conference, when the bishop announces the changing of pastoral workers from one part of the great vineyard to another.

After the last conference the West Glendale Methodist church parted with its long loved pastor, Rev. C. A. Norcross, but now greets another prize in the personality of Rev. Eugene M. Crandall, from the church at Santa Maria, Cal., originally from New York. He did not come west for health, but to work. He evidently is fitted for it. His is the mental-motive temperament; tall, slender, wiry and active. Things will be doing in his bailiwick. In more than one way he suggests the great North Carolina evangelist, Bulgín—certainly in his sense of humor, coupled with his literal interpretation of the Bible. He preaches the law of God and the gospel of Jesus Christ "straight out from the shoulder," as he understands them.

Like Orator Bulgín also, his dress is "just what a minister of the Lord should wear," as one discriminating observer observed. His graying hair tells of serious experience. His expansive, progressive smile wins him friends, as does his genial, hearty handshake, with his quick appreciation of appreciation.

Under the Stars and Stripes over the pulpit he prayed for good citizenship, for co-operation of all forces for good in Glendale, for our country, our President, our soldiers and for victory that means peace for all the world. Both church and preacher have reason for self-congratulation. So has Glendale—not for losing Mr. Norcross, but for gaining Mr. Crandall. He also preaches practical religion. "Pay what you owe, whether of service or silver." The shirker may think he is truly religious, but his fellows and God know he is not.

Miss Gould is the organist. Misses Singleton, Midealf, Hommer, Jones, Baxter and Sprattford form the sextet choir. So well trained that the six seemed singing as one.

It is hoped they will help with the Saturday night community singing at the Glendale Union High School.

Rev. Crandall will bring his family from Santa Maria and be settled in Glendale this week.

He is a "good mixer," and it is believed from appearances at and after

THE ORPHAN CHILDREN

On Saturday last Miss Godfrey invited to her beautiful home in La Canada, Deaconess Wile, with the children under her care. She is in charge of the Church Home for Children, 500 East Avenue 28, Los Angeles. Those who know Deaconess Wile feel that her charming personality is of itself a blessing to the children. They came over the Flint Ridge route. A clean, happy, fresh looking band of children, ranging from three to fourteen years of age, in every way attractive. Several friends from Glendale were there to assist Miss Godfrey, each provided with lunches, while she had a most hospitable table prepared for all. Assembled around the table, with folded hands, their young voices arose in unison in a reverent blessing. Then how they enjoyed their dinner! Their perfect manners and good behavior were remarkable. After returning thanks in the same reverent way they went out to play, as happy as the birds. Then Miss Godfrey invited them out to her vineyard, where they had a merry time gathering grapes, eating as they gathered, and filling baskets to take home. It was a happy day for the children, while Miss Godfrey's friends enjoyed seeing her happiness in bestowing kindness and in doing good to the orphan children.

WIRE WOUND GUNS

One of the chief sources of strength in big guns lies in the miles and miles of steel ribbon with which the tube is re-enforced. This ribbon, one-sixteenth of an inch thick and about a quarter of an inch wide, is wound around the tube or core of the great cannon. On a twelve inch gun about 130 miles of the ribbon is wound, a weight of fifteen tons. The ribbon has a tensile strength of 100 tons per square inch.

"There," commented the mother of a defeated pupil, sneeringly, "that's Mrs. Bigg's boy! He wouldn't be his mother's son if he didn't want to borrow something."—The Watchman-Examiner.

At the annual prize day of a certain school, the head boy rose to give his recitation.

"Friends, Romans, countrymen," he vociferated, "lend me your ears!"

NEW THOUGHT

Masonic Temple, 532 South Brand boulevard.

At the Sunday morning service Dr. Riley spoke on "Prayer and Healing."

"As next Sunday is to be put aside by the President of the United States as a day of prayer for success, it is well to ask just what is prayer. The Germans, the Russians, the French, the English, are all praying to God for success. Possibly the German is praying with more earnestness than are the others. Will God hear the German's prayer as well as the American's? If we pray for success and our prayers are not answered, what will be the reason why?"

"I believe in answered prayer, but in no anthropomorphism. God. The Episcopalian ritual declares God to be without body, parts or passions. God does not sympathize with those who tease Him the most. We must pray according to principle and know that right will triumph."

"Be not deceived. God is not mocked, for that which a nation soweth that shall a nation reap. Be single-minded; come out fair and square; care not what people think of you. 'We live ridiculously for fear of being thought ridiculous.' We pray God to be good and merciful when He is already that. God is within us, but we can shut or turn off His power and then are unable to manifest or express that which we would."

"When you pray for the success of our army and allies, if matters seem to get worse after your prayer, remember that as a boil appears worse after the remedy is applied so it may be that 'the boil on the body politic must become worse' before success appears. Faith without works is dead—remove the cause of the trouble, root out the wrong thoughts and motives."

"Billy Sunday's theology may not be in accordance with yours, but never mind his hell fire and damnation teaching; his morality is sound. He is not living a faith without works doctrine."

"Get dominion over yourself. Keep the truths of the Bible in mind. Let our prayer be followed by works, remembering that God is principle."

Mrs. Becker spoke in the evening on the subject, "Get Ye Up Out of This Country."

"We have Abraham as a forbear, as a father in the spiritual thought of today. Abraham came early into a spiritual understanding. After entering into this superior spiritual consciousness, there came the command to get up out of his country and enter a land flowing with milk and honey. Whenever we are really sincere in trying to find the true self and the law which binds self to God, the call always comes to go into something better. For that which we have had no longer satisfies us."

"And yet many of us having become accustomed to the old country, we hesitate until something forces us on. Once that you get hold of something bigger and broader, you must go on."

"That is what is happening today in this war. The human race has come to a place where it has to come up out of the old conditions if there is ever to be any progress."

"Break away from the old conditions and environment. Don't look always on the old, but look for the new and better things. Believe that you have just touched the border land of this wonder land flowing with milk and honey."

"If you wish to develop the God within you, you can not stand still. Change from the old conditions of poverty thought, loneliness and lack of love. Think thoughts of plenty; reach out and help others, and give a little and you will enter into a new country."

VISIT LE HAVRE

in the square of Rouen in 1431. Twenty-one years after her execution she was declared innocent of practicing witchcraft, and a beautiful cross was erected to her memory on the spot where the stake had been placed. Such is the irony of fate!

Since our stay here is limited, we will devote most of our time to a study of the cathedral which was begun in the eleventh century and completed in the sixteenth. The central spire was destroyed by lightning in 1822 and replaced by one of iron-work, which is so hideous and incongruous that one regrets that a similar fate has not befallen it. The cathedral itself is wonderfully beautiful at all seasons, but I want you to see it, as we did, in May—the month of Mary—for then its doors will be open and candles burning on the altar of the Blessed Virgin. 'Tis said that piety languishes in the modern industrial world, and Rouen is, as you know, a manufacturing city, often called the Manchester of France, but not even in Rome, at the most important ceremony, have I found people assembled in greater numbers or more earnest devotion, even though the month of Mary is not a service of obligation. You then realize that the cathedral is something more than a monument maintained by the state, for the satisfaction of the tourist, and you then understand why its builders made it so beautiful, and why its history is made of all the tears and laughter of Rouen since the town became Christian. There are three wonderful rose windows of the thirteenth century; there are riches, canopies, spires, turrets, pinnacles and arcades. There is the Tour de Beurre or Butter Tower, so called because it was paid for from dispensations granted to the weak, who could not, or would not, do without butter during Lent. In no French town do you realize better than at Rouen that the cathedral belongs to the people and is theirs to use. They make it their home, and in its shadows perform their homely tasks of sewing, knitting, lace making or what not. The exterior is flamboyant in the extreme, but the interior is very simple, even bare, owing to the brutalities of the revolution, but it is still rich in chapels, shrines and tombs, and never have I seen more noble tombs than the two that are in the Lady Chapel of Rouen. On one side in a sculptured recess the two cardinals of Amboise kneel with priestly dignity, their hands clasped in prayer and their robes spread out behind them in official splendor. On the other, the Duke de Breze is seen above, in armor, sitting astride his horse, while below, between his wife, Diane de Poitiers, bent in grief that royalty in the person of Henry II was to comfort, and the Madonna with the Child in her arms, he reappears, lying on his shroud naked, shorn of all earthly goods and glory, in the poverty that death, whose supreme gift is equality, brings alike to rich and poor. The figure is pathetically human and touching, and one is moved by an impulse to smooth the shroud and straighten the tired, helpless hands. It is said to be the work of Jean Goujon.

Usually a cathedral has some one distinguishing point, but that at Rouen has everything a cathedral should have—beauty of architecture, beauty of history and beauty of picturesqueness—for Notre Dame de Rouen is of inexhaustible interest, and yet we can not stay longer within its walls and will devote the few hours remaining to a walk about the city, visiting the square of the Haute Veille Tour, with its chapel, where every year one criminal is set free in the name of St. Romain; view the Grosse Horloge, or big clock, the town's timekeeper for ages past; the donjon (dungeon) of Philip Augustus, the oldest of France, so full of tragic memories of Jeanne d'Arc, whose name it now bears, and then we will step from these narrow streets into the boulevard, with its new markets and latest shops, its fine cafe, where we will lunch before taking a train to the station, where we will go aboard the train which is to carry us to Labelle Paris. Later, three hours later, our train pulls into the Gare St. Lazare, and after our baggage has again been duly inspected we come out of the station and take a taxi to the Hotel Continental, No. 3 Rue de Castiglione and Rue de Rivoli, opposite the Jardin de la Tuileries. We remove the stains of travel and descend to the dining room, where we enjoy a fine French dinner. In order to avoid an attack of mental indigestion we retire at 10:30, ridiculously early from the Parisian point of view, hoping to sleep well, so that we may be equal to the demands upon our strength on the morrow, when we are to see a few of the sights and enjoy a few of the delights of Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Wells, 328 S. Maryland, have heard from their son, Neal, after his arrival at Presidio, Texas, where he was sent from Fort Bliss, Texas. He belongs to Troop I, Eighth cavalry, which has just completed the trip from Fort Bliss, a distance of 270 miles, on horseback. It was a wonderful experience for the boys, being a most scenic route through desert and over mountains. Twenty-five to thirty miles were covered in a day. Neal Wells was one of Glendale's earliest volunteers, having entered the service last April.

MEETING OF THE Y. P. B.

The regular meeting of the Y. P. B. was held Saturday evening at the home of Miss Mabel Robbins, 508 Columbus avenue. A very pleasant evening was spent and Mrs. Robbins served dainty refreshments of punch and little cakes to the young people. Plans were made for the open social meeting to be held on November 6 at the home of Miss Elizabeth Mottern, 1109 West Fifth street. All the young people of Glendale will be welcome and will find the program of much interest. Mrs. Stella B. Irvine of Riverside, state president of the W. C. T. U. and state worker in the war service department, will be the speaker of the evening. She will speak on war service work. Mrs. Hattie Doughty of Los Angeles, state superintendent of Y. P. B., will also be present and will give a talk.

The girls of the Y. P. B. are doing splendid war service work. This little group has subscribed $5 for electrical fans for a soldiers' hospital, through the war service department of the W. C. T. U., and has given money to fill two comfort bags, besides the sewing so faithfully accomplished at the meetings. The average attendance is about fifteen, and at the meeting Saturday the girls prepared a dozen and a half "many tailed" bandages. The same work will be continued at the next meeting, and is in charge of Miss Emma Esterly, vice president of the Glendale Y. P. B. ## SUNLAND

Mrs. W. H. Nance, chairman of the committee on pajama suits of the Sunland branch of the American Red Cross, entertained on Thursday several ladies to sew for the soldier boys. Those present were Mrs. Richardson, the recording secretary of the Sunland branch; Mrs. Graham, purchasing agent of same branch; Mrs. Blumfield, Mrs. Haffinger and Mrs. Shaw. At 1 o'clock Mrs. Nance served a luscious three course lunch. A social as well as an industrial afternoon was spent interspersed with music and the ladies' hearts were gladdened at the amount that was accomplished. All report a good time and made their adieus at 5 o'clock with a promise of a repetition soon.

AN EPOCH IN SONG

(By Walt Le Noir Church.)

In the Billy Sunday Tabernacle last night, at the suggestion of Choir Director Homer Rodeheaver, something dropped. It was the long mistaken foreign idea that America has no folk songs to be proud of, except a few old plantation melodies. It happened this way:

Mr. Rodeheaver introduced the already well known musician, Prof. Carl Bronson, of the famous Gamut Club, who some time ago was requested to look up the folk songs of America. The result of his investigation was a surprise.

In a word, the United States is a religious nation, and real folk songs are evangelical. Go where you may, among the mountains or the valleys of the East as well as the West, the North and the South, and you will hear among the common people, "just folks," the good old hymns our mothers and grandmothers taught us.

In Italy, the folk songs are the favorite, simple, heartfelt airs from the operas. "The Sextet from Lucia" may be heard in many a hut, and in the vineyards of that sunny land.

In Spain the people sing Gypsy songs. In Russia, songs of romance and mythical heroes, or songs sighing for a liberty they dream of but never till lately knew. In England, largely of the fox hunt, or the ale and beer ditties of the merry Robin Hood days.

But under stress of peculiar circumstances which lifted the hearts of our people in the South up toward God, their heart and soul songs were such as Charles Wesley wrote in Charleston, Ga., away back in 1737. In 1770 they were the vogue in New York. Ten years later in Vienna. Since then all over the Christianized world. Following him, were such an army of gospel song writers and singers—too many to mention. But what American boy or girl, in Sunday school or out of it, does not thrill to such gospel songs as "Throw Out the Life Line," "Brighten the Corner Where You Are" and "Then I Shall See Him Face to Face."

The great fact was made clear last night to 15,000 people singing as one, led by Homer Rodeheaver, and that mighty choir of 3000 voices composed of the finest singers from all over Los Angeles county. You should have heard that vast community singing multitude sing equally well "Brighten the Corner Where You Are" or the music master's masterpiece, "The Hallelujah Chorus," from "The Messiah."

There were solos and duets, heart songs and soul songs, giving three hours of delight, long to be remembered. But the one thing most notable is this: Of that vast throng of singers, 15,000 strong, by what seemed a unanimous standing vote formally decided that "the folk songs of America are gospel songs." Both the wire and the wireless are still flashing that significant message to all the gospel singers in the world, and Los Angeles county takes on an added glory that will brighten with the prosperous years that shall come to her.

Mr. Wm. Lancaster has accepted a position in the oil fields at Fillmore and will leave for that place next Sunday.

Mrs. Garner has been spending a few days in the city visiting friends.

Mr. Alfred Adams, Jr., has been testing out his ability as canner, having been canning peaches and tomatoes. He says next year he is going to can all the mountain clings raised in the valley. This is a move in the right direction. There are great possibilities for Sunland's future. All we need is a few pushers like Mr. Adams.

There has been a great shortage in eggs in the valley the past two weeks. The hens seem to be on a strike. The price is 60 cents per dozen. It looks as if we would have to find an eggless recipe for pumpkin pies.

The Ladies' Aid of the First Baptist church met Thursday in the post-office room. A quilt was tied and a social afternoon spent. A very interesting letter from our pastor's wife, who is visiting in Missouri, was read by Mrs. Lancaster. Meeting adjourned to meet in two weeks at the same place.

The ladies of the Sunland branch of the Red Cross have a new supply of yarn on hand for any one who wishes to knit. Occupy your spare moments and help the soldier boys.

BOTTLING INDUSTRY OF ALBANY, N. Y.

The manufacture of beverages in this section of the state has given Albany a large, prosperous and important industry in the bottling of these goods. Particularly the bottling of so-called "soft stuff" is a large and growing industry in Albany, attracting the attention as a business of some of the ablest men of affairs in Albany.

One tendency of the time is the greater use of those soft drinks in the household. They are pure and wholesome, give an added pleasure to family life, keep the family, especially the children, healthy and happy, and always stand ready as a wholesome beverage that can be served to any and all callers. For household purposes these soft drinks are usually purchased by the case at a reasonable price, a price that discounts greatly their purchase at the soda fountain or any other agency.

The medicinal purposes of these soft drinks are becoming recognized more and more every day. Made up as they are of pure water, with pure cane sugar and the purest flavoring of ginger, sarsaparilla, root, birch, lemon, orange, grape, cherry or other fruit or plant life, every ingredient not only possesses the negative virtue of being harmless, but has the positive attribute of being healthful. The water is a cleanser; the sugar a warmth giver and the flavoring also possesses health giving, body building properties, so that the family doctor will recommend the free use of soft drinks in the household.

The bottlers' trade in Albany has shown rapid strides in the last years. New machinery has facilitated the work and increased the capacity of Albany plants. The automobile truck has taken the place of the horse-drawn vehicle, and this makes it possible for Albany bottlers to send their goods direct to far points of the compass. It is not a strange sight to see one of the Albany bottlers' trucks loaded with soft stuff a hundred miles from home and still outward bound. There are also heavy shipments by rail and water, carrying Albany bottled goods to all lands and all peoples. ARGUS OF ALBANY, N. Y.

POTASH ITS OWN REWARD

Uncle Sam has offered no reward to the discoverers of deposits of soluble potash. When it is realized that soluble potash is now selling in the United States for ten times the price asked for it before the outbreak of the European war, and that no more than one-twentieth of the amount commonly used before the war is now produced in this country, it will be seen that the government has no need to offer a reward, officials declare. The discovery of commercial amounts of soluble potash is its own reward.

EXPLORES THE EARLY HISTORY OF INDIANS AND OKLAHOMA

How the irresistible flood of white migration swallowed up the American Indian is told by Dr. Roy Gittinger in an important work of historical research just issued by the University of California, in its "Publications in History." This volume of some 250 pages, on "The Formation of the State of Oklahoma, 1803 to 1906," is one of the "Semi-Centennial Series" being published by the University of California. Through this contribution to knowledge of American history, Roy Gittinger, Professor of English History in the University of Oklahoma, has won the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of California.

His story begins with 1803, when the United States bought from France the "Louisiana Purchase," that vast domain stretching from the mouths of the Mississippi to northernmost Montana. He tells how already the Indians, forced westward by the rising tide of white men, had begun to cross the Mississippi, and how in 1808 the government acceded to the proposal of delegates representing the Cherokees that their whole people should migrate into northwestern Arkansas, and lands stretching indefinitely west to be theirs. By 1844 some 26,000 Cherokees had settled in Oklahoma, and also 25,000 Creeks, 12,000 Choctaws, 4000 Chickasaws, 3000 Seminoles and a few hundred each of Quapaws, Seneca-Shawnees and Senecas. But in 1907, while there were said to be over 100,000 members of the "five civilized tribes" in Oklahoma, of all these only 23,000 were reported as full bloods.

How the "civilized tribes," from their first arrival in Oklahoma, lived by commerce and agriculture, under their own well developed laws and institutions, and how the nomadic tribes farther to the west depended on hunting and fishing, is told by Professor Gittinger.

Congressional legislation forbade settlement in the Indian country save for officials, soldiers, missionaries or licensed traders. In every case, however, records Professor Gittinger, the claims of Indians to territory have yielded to determined and persistent pressure. He tells of the disorders of the civil war time, when Indian communities were often stripped of everything worth taking, and when the Indian population was much divided in its tribal sympathies as between the Union and the Confederacy. The story is told in detail of how Oklahoma, whose very name was a Choctaw word meaning "Home for the Red Man," was persistently nibbled at by the "boomers." He tells of the movement toward substituting individual for community ownership of land by the Indians, the administration of the Indian Territory, and its opening to white settlers. The difficulties with squatters are described and the rise of the theory that it was better for the Indians that they should be owners of amounts of land such as they could really farm for themselves, than that vast areas should fall into the hands of a few acquisitive individuals. Professor Gittinger points out that before Oklahoma was opened to settlement a million acres of the three millions occupied by the Creeks were in the hands of about 61 persons, while a hundred people had possessed fully half the land of the wealthy and progressive Cherokee tribe.

Careful narrative is given of the details of how between 1889 and 1901 Oklahoma was opened to settlement. For two generations Oklahoma had stood like a rocky bluff, deflecting the stream of westward settlement toward the north and the south. How, at last, wave after wave of white men poured into the fertile region. Professor Gittinger is the first scientific historian to record the events of this period, and of the formation of the only American state where the presence of the Indian was an important and conditioning factor. One-third of all the Indians of the United States were ready to participate as citizens in the organization of Oklahoma. Within a few months after its opening, in 1889, 60,000 people had entered the Oklahoma district, of whom 20,000 were in towns. Within a dozen years there were over half a million people in Oklahoma, and as many more in the Indian Territory. In all, a million citizens of the United States were in need of state government, in an area which twelve years before had been an unorganized Indian country—one of the most astonishing migrations in all recorded human history.

In the daily routine of life you ask of those with whom you come in contact both honesty and fairness of treatment.

More so, than ever, do you need such help during the sorrows of bereavement. Then, as at no other time, you ask and have a right to expect conscientious service—the kind "you" yourself would give were you able to do so.

You ask and expect an impressive service, free of needless expense, yet fitting the occasion.

In using Scovern-Letton-Frey Co. service either in our mortuary, at the church or in your own home, you will find all these requirements met—quietly, restfully and in good taste.

ONLY FEMALE ARMY SURGEON

Dr. Markland is the only female surgeon in the British army. Dr. Markland is a most unusual miss, and the distinction which she holds has been won by her great skill as a surgeon.

She holds a reputation in her private practice which makes her one of the foremost women surgeons in the world. Dr. Markland will render service very probably in one of the hospitals behind the firing lines in France. She has won the commendation of many physicians in Great Britain, and when she offered her services to the army she was accepted after some deliberation as to whether a woman doctor could serve in the army ranks.

There is little question but that Dr. Markland will prove that women doctors in the field can be of considerable service, and soon many more of her sex will be seen in the ranks.
